DECIDE RASKOB, DUPONT TRIED TO EVADE TAXATION

Board To Determine Exact Amount of Deficits Later

Washington, July 12.—(AP)—The United States board of tax appeals found today that Pierre S. Du Pont and John J. Raskob had attempted to evade more than $1,000,000 of income taxes by "paper transactions" in securities.

The exact amount of additional taxes due on their 1929 incomes was left by the board to be determined later, but attorneys estimated Raskob might be held to owe about $1,000,000 and Du Pont about $500,000.

Du Pont, a large contributor to Republican campaign funds in 1936, is chairman of the board of directors of E. I. Du Pont de Nemours and Company. Raskob was chairman of the Democratic national committee and campaign manager for Alfred E. Smith in 1928, but turned against Roosevelt and with Smith promoted the Liberty league in opposition to Roosevelt.

After the 1929 stock market crash, Du Pont and Raskob sold about $4,500,000 of securities to each other at prices far below what they had paid for them. Eventually they resold the securities to each other so each wound up with his original holdings. They claimed deductions from their income tax for the losses indicated by the difference between the original value of the securities and the prices at which the securities were sold.

The board said, "when summed up, our whole question is one as to whether the transactions considered are such as the statutes as to deductibles losses intended and contemplated, or were paper transactions to escape tax liability."

Require Examination

"The matter before us here required examination in the light of the ordinary actions and reactions of men, guided by criteria of reasonable human behavior in business transactions."

"So viewed, they demonstrate, in our opinion, the complete improbability of the assertions of petitioner that the sales were bona fide, real, free from agreement to reacquire, in spite of the result—the complete return to original ownership. Such a result could conceivably be without design, but such a thing would be entirely too remarkable for belief."

"Men do not conduct themselves and accomplish the end as did these parties toward each other, and attain an end so advantageous to their fortunes, without a common understanding. This design was too complete to be without designer."

"The record before us bears its transparency, and though the respondent (government) had, contrary to the usual situation, the burden of proof because of having raised this issue after proceeding was filed, in our opinion that burden was abundantly met."

"To reach a different conclusion would require us to be blind to fact and to place a premium on ingenuity, rather than bona fides."

Dixon Cameraman's Exhibit Selected

A seven-print exhibit by Attorney Elwin Wadsworth of Dixon was selected for special commendation by Don Loving of Chicago, well known non-professional photographer, at last evening's joint dinner meeting and exhibit for Camera clubs of Dixon, Rockford, Freeport, Beloit, and Janesville at Rockford. Nearly 40 amateur photographers were present, and about 60 prints were displayed.

The entire Dixon exhibit, including 20 pictures, was praised by Mr. Loving, who is a member of the Ft. Dearborn Camera club of Chicago. Mr. Loving lectures on photography at the Chicago Art Institute, and is to assist in conducting a summer school to be sponsored by the Art Institute at Saugatuck, Mich., during the entire month of August.

Attending from the local club were Attorney Elwin Wadsworth, Durward Brader, Arnold LaCour, Henry Pollock, Max Eno, William Rusk, Joseph A. L. Russo, John W. Mills and Loren Swartz.

The river reached a crest of 19.9 feet yesterday, about two feet below a predicted crest. Flood stage of 16 feet has been passed here three times this year.

Picket Silver

New York, July 12.—(AP)—The executive committee of the Armoured Car Chauffeurs & Drivers Union, local 820, (A. F. of L.) voted last night to picket the transfer of $1,300,000 worth of silver bars from the U. S. assay office here to the new government storehouse at West Point.

The action was taken, union officials said, because the man who contracted to move the silver has "locked out" union guards on the trucks. The assay office and a bank will be picketed.

Two guards, provided by the government, ride in each truck.

OFFICIALS WORK ON WHEAT LOAN PROGRAM TODAY

Washington, July 12.—(AP)—Federal farm officials began drafting details today of a wheat loan program, made mandatory by the forecast of a near-record crop.

Although provisions will not be announced for a few days, it was expected generally the loans would be about 59 cents a bushel, the minimum allowed under the new crop control act. The maximum is about 86 cents.

The loans can be obtained by farmers who wish to store their wheat until prices improve. They are required by law whenever the July estimate of production exceeds normal domestic and export needs of about 750,000,000 bushels.

The federal crop reporters predicted yesterday a yield of 967,102,000 bushels, only 41,000,000 bushels short of the record 1915 crop.

Whether the agriculture department will have a corn surplus problem will be determined by weather conditions during the next three weeks. The crop reporting board forecast a yield of 2,482,102,000 bushels. Officials said that if this estimate was borne out by the August report, it might be necessary to propose marketing quotas.

Peace Negotiations in Waukegan Failed

Waukegan, Ill., July 12.—(AP)—Negotiations for settling the turbulent strike at the Chicago Hardware Foundry Company, North Chicago, collapsed today against a stone wall of disagreement over a company wage cut order.

Company and union representatives emerged from a conference to announce no progress toward settlement had been made and no further conferences were scheduled.

Circuit Judge Ralph Dady proceeded, then, with a hearing on whether 10 members of the union, local 1192, Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel & Tin Workers, a C. I. O. affiliate, should be held in contempt for alleged violation of a temporary injunction.

Judge Dady issued the injunction July 2 forbidding strikers to interfere with employees who wished to return to work.

But, he added, a thief discovered the cold cash.

SUCCESS OF OUR GOVERNMENT IS DESIRE OF FDR

President Declares He Wants Democracy To Work in Nation

Aboard President Roosevelt's Train Enroute to San Francisco, July 12.—(AP)—President Roosevelt asserted today that "we want democracy to work."

"That is our chief objective," the President told a crowd estimated by police at more than 15,000, in a brief rear platform address from his special train at Pueblo, Colo.

"We don't want to copy other forms of government," he said. "Ours is good enough for us."

The President avoided reference to Colorado's Democratic senatorial primary, making no mention either of Senator Alva B. Adams or his primary rival, Judge Benjamin C. Hilliard.

Roosevelt devoted much of his Pueblo talk to describing the government's efforts toward conserving natural resources, and described the government as "a common meeting ground" for the states in adjusting their differences, particularly those involving water.

His only mention of a Colorado official came when he said, discussing interstate water problems: "Your governor and I have talked about them."

Speaks of River

The president said the average person in the east thinks the Arkansas river is a creek and is surprised when told the people of Pueblo were nearly wiped out in 1921.

"That river is not the problem of just one state," the President said he always talks about the Arkansas as a good example of a watershed and such watersheds' various needs.

His address last night, at Amarillo, Texas, Elwood Park was delivered in a driving, wind-blown rain. The President, spurning a rain coat, stood hatless facing the storm.

He interspersed a talk on farming and water conservation with jests on the rain. More seriously, the President said at the end of his speech:

"I think this little shower that we've had is a mighty good omen." That remark, coming while the rain soaked the President to the skin and blew so hard in his face that his eyes were squinted, brought a roar from the Amarillo dust bowl crowd.

After Pueblo, his train was routed northwestward through the scenic beauties of the Royal Gorge. A sightseeing stop was scheduled for Hanging Bridge.

Stops for servicing the train with fuel and water were scheduled for Parkdale, Salida, Malta, Minturn and Grand Junction in Colorado and at Greenriver in Utah.

Governor Henry H. Blood of Utah was due to join the train at Malta, Colo.

Late last night, White House officials announced the President had taken the advice of California state officials and the Secret Service in cancelling a proposed visit to the O'Shaughnessy dam on July 15. Instead, Roosevelt will spend all that day in Yosemite park.

Coast state officials warned the presidential party against an attempt to travel the hazardous roads leading to O'Shaughnessy dam from San Francisco's Hetch Hetchy Water and Power system.

JAP BOMBS FALL NEAR AMERICAN MISSIONS TODAY

Raid Follows Warning That All Foreigners Should Withdraw

Hankow, July 12.—(AP)—Bombs from Japanese warplanes exploded today close to four United States missionary institutions in Wuchang, just across the Yangtze river from Hankow, but no Americans were injured.

Approximately 200 Chinese were killed or injured in the raid, carried out by 18 planes which dropped at least 100 bombs.

Meanwhile Japanese warplanes bombed Canton twice today, scoring seven direct hits on the Wongsing station and causing an estimated 52 deaths and injuries to 200.

The mission establishments endangered were Boone university, St. Hilda's school, St. Joseph's hospital and Christian Missionary Alliance mission.

The raid followed closely yesterday's warning by the Japanese air force that Hankow and other central China cities would be bombed intensely and that all foreigners should withdraw from them.

One wing of the Hupeh provincial hospital was demolished by a direct hit and many patients and members of the staff were crushed under the debris.

Chinese anti-aircraft guns kept up a continuous fire at the 18 bombers, which were accompanied by a larger number of pursuit planes.

PROPERTIES DESTROYED

Shanghai, July 12.—(AP)—Japanese bombers raided Chinese positions on the outskirts of Kiukiang today while Chinese defenders, preparing to fight to a finish and intending to leave nothing valuable behind, systematically destroyed Kiukiang waterfront properties, including American possessions.

Japanese troops attempted to land on the west bank of the channel leading into Poyang lake, 10 miles east of Kiukiang, which is 125 miles down the Yangtze river from Hankow, present Chinese capital and Japanese goal.

Thrilling Hours

Newark, N. J., July 12.—(AP)—Some 1,400 men, women and children reached their homes in the early morning today after dancing and singing through three thrilling hours aboard the excursion steamer Americana, grounded on mud flats within sight of this city.

While searchlights ashore pierced the night, six tugs and a Newark fire boat strained at low lines and finally freed the steamer in City channel at Port Newark. Then the passengers, returning from an all day outing of the Newark health department to Rotan's Point, Conn., landed safely.

Points Out Technical Error Involving an Appropriation

Springfield, Ill., July 12.—(AP)—Governor Horner let the compromise drivers' license bill become law without his signature today, pointing out a technical error involving the $400,000 appropriation for administration.

President Charles M. Hayes of the Chicago Motor Club, long an advocate of the plan to promote highway safety by licensing motorists, watched as the governor signed the companion bill to require financial responsibility.

Attorney General Otto Kerner had ruled that the drivers' license bill was faulty in that the appropriation was not given the required two-thirds vote in the senate. Mr. Horner said other points would have to be corrected in the future. One of the technicalities was that the bill's title did not refer to the appropriation feature.

Approves Theory

Approving the theory of licensing drivers, the governor said he would depend upon the disbursing officers not to use the $400,000 appropriation.

Since licenses won't be required until next May 1, the plan is for the 1939 legislature to rush through a new appropriation.

Long the subject of a political deadlock, the licensing issue was compromised during the recent special sessions. Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes is to issue licenses and the governor's division of highways to administer the rest of the act. The appropriation was split, with $300,000 going to Hughes and $100,000 to the highway division.

Step Toward Safety

Hayes, chairman of the governor's safety commission, was given the pen used in signing the financial responsibility bill. Of drivers licensing, Hayes said:

"I am confident that it will be an important step toward making Illinois one of the safest states in the union."

Some 3,000,000 motorists in Illinois will be required to get licenses, costing 50 cents for three years, which can be revoked for serious offenses.

"I am convinced and a large majority of informed persons share the view," Mr. Horner said, "that a drivers' license law, efficiently administered will reduce the great hazard of travel upon our highways."

Delay until 1939 in legalizing the appropriations will not handicap administration of the act, he continued.

Application for PWA Grant Filed

Henry Gehant, chairman of the board of supervisors, Seth Anderson, chairman of the road and bridge committee, and Fred W. Leake, motored to Chicago Monday to apply for a PWA grant which would net 45 percent of a $125,000 improvement project in federal aid.

The project is designed to improve and construct the Lee Center pavement spur, the Binghamton bridge, and build a retreat surface over the Lowell park road in addition to construction of a new road south of Lowell park road to Swissville which would join route 30 at the Borden factory.

Doctor's Journal Reveals How He Turns From Life to "An Old Friend"

San Rafael, Calif., July 12.—(AP)—A small town doctor, missing from his southern California home for more than a week, told today in a 3,000-word journal of how he turned from life, with its bitter endurance, to death, which he hailed as "an old friend."

The body of Dr. Joseph M. Swindt, 32, Chino and Pomona, Calif., physician and surgeon, was found yesterday in an inn at Olema, on the Marin county coast. Coroner J. Ray Keaton said Dr. Swindt had been dead three days, of self-administered poison.

The doctor's journal, released by the coroner, explained: "This is no rash act done on the spur of the moment, but a cool, collected deed resulting from months of thought."

Boutall, a widower of two years, and Flora Evelyn Anna May, were married at St. John's Episcopal church last night because the Mays, farmers all, insisted they had to clean up their farm chores before donning wedding togs. Previously an afternoon ceremony had been planned.

More than 2,000 persons waited outside the church for a glimpse of the bridal party. The ceremony was witnessed by 100 guests.

WEST VIRGINIANS FORM "PEACEFUL PROTEST" MARCH

Weirton, W. Va., July 12.—(AP)—Workers and business men of this northern West Virginia steel town mobilized today for a "peaceful protest" march against the conduct of the 11-month-old Weirton Steel company case by Edward Grandison Smith, labor board examiner.

The residents of Weirton and of adjoining Hollidays Cove adopted without protest last night a resolution calling for the closing of every place of business in the two towns to protest the barring from the hearing of Clyde A. Armstrong, chief company counsel for the subsidiary of E. T. Weir's National Steel corporation.

The ruling by Smith was the climax of frequent and bitter clashes between counsel and the examiner during the long national labor relations board case. Weirton steel—one of those "little steel" firms that has steadfastly refused to bargain with the C. I. O.—Affiliated Steel Workers organizing committee—is charged with unfair labor practices, including the domination of its employees, in violation of the Wagner act.

As the hearing progressed, it became more tense, once Smith broke his gavel and shattered the glass top of his desk while pounding for order. Last Thursday Armstrong started making an objection to certain testimony. Smith ordered him to "sit down" and Armstrong refused.

Smith, in barring the attorney yesterday, said his behavior was "defiant, contemptuous and contumacious" and that he had failed to show "remorse or repentance."

Smith Criticizes F.D.R., Congress

Albany, N. Y., July 12.—(AP)—Former Governor Alfred E. Smith criticized President Roosevelt and Congress today for failure to help the railroads "get out of the red."

He made the criticism at New York's constitutional convention in a speech opposing an amendment to a proposal which would require the state to pay the cost of grade crossing eliminations. The amendment would "require railroads to pay part of improvements incidental to crossing eliminations."

At present railroads pay 50 per cent, the state 49 per cent and the localities one per cent.

Crowd Watched Lunch

A crowd of spectators jammed the dining room and watched while the fliers tried to snatch a quick lunch.

Georgi Baidukoff, one of the Russian Polar fliers, greeted Hughes with the remark, "I'll see you in America," leading to speculation whether he was contemplating another flight soon.

Mikhail Gromoff and Andrei Yumoshoff, others of the Polar crew, also were in the crowd.

Post's flight to Moscow, via Berlin rather than Paris, required an elapsed time of 50 hours and 10 minutes from New York. He was in the air 35½ hours, and his distance at the Moscow point was 4,933 miles.

News of Interest to Community Farmers

ABOVE-AVERAGE CORN CROP HAS BEEN INDICATED

Referendum on Marketing Quotas May Be Given to Growers

Washington, July 11.—(AP)—The agriculture department said yesterday July 1 conditions indicated a 1938 corn crop of 2,482,102,000 bushels and a combined winter-spring wheat crop of 967,412,000 bushels.

Corn production was 2,644,995,000 bushels last year and the 10-year average, 1927-36, was 2,306,157,000 bushels.

Total wheat production was 873,995,000 bushels last year and the 10-year average, 1927-36, was 752,891,000 bushels.

The estimated combined wheat crop would be the second largest on record.

On the basis of present prices, this estimate made it mandatory under the farm law that the government provide loans to growers desiring to hold surplus supplies of the bread grain off the market until supplies are smaller and prices are better.

Loan Rate. The loan rate, which officials said they would announce later in the week, must be between 59 and 80 cents a bushel.

Officials have indicated that the rate will be about the minimum. Indicated production of other crops, with comparisons for last year and the 1927-36 10-year average, included:

Oats, 1,093,829,000 bushels compared with 1,146,258,000 and 1,042,461,000.

Rye, 51,327,000 bushels compared with 53,138,000 last month, 49,449,000 and 36,454,000.

Hay (tame), 79,488,000 tons compared with 73,785,000 and 69,754,000.

Beans (dry edible), 13,559,000 bags of 100 lbs., compared with 15,839,000 and 12,053,000.

Potatoes, 386,660,000 bushels compared with 391,159,000 and 369,693,000.

Apples, 134,394,000 bushels compared with 210,673,000 and 150,728,000.

Peaches, 53,651,000 bushels compared with 50,920,000 last month, 59,724,000 and 52,498,000.

Pears, 31,049,000 bushels compared with 29,876,000 last month, 59,548,000 and 24,326,000.

Acres for Harvest. The acreage for harvest this year, its percentage of last year's acreage, and the acre yield indicated July 1, for principal crops included:

Corn, 92,146,000 acres, or 98.2 percent of last year's acreage; acre yield, 26.9 bushels.

Wheat, 71,069,000 acres, or 110.3 percent, and 13.6 bushels.

Winter wheat, 49,915,000, or 106.3 percent, and 14.3.

All spring wheat, 21,184,000 or (Continued on Page 3)

Lee County Cattle Among High Sellers

Lee county cattle were among the high sellers on a fast rising cattle market at the Chicago Stock Yards last week.

Ben Koch, of Compton, accompanied a drove of 34 head of 1090 pound heaves of his own feeding that sold at $11.35 per cwt., one of the high prices of the trade on the day they were here for cattle of these weights.

William Klingebiel, well known Lee county cattle feeder and land operator, was in Chicago on the same day with 30 head of 823 pound steers that brought $10.25 per cwt. These cattle cost their owner $10.00 per cwt. as feeders last October. They were on full feed 110 days and more than doubled their original weights. They were followed by hogs, and Mr. Klingebiel figures that he will have a good net return from the venture.

Both cattle and hog prices advanced to new seasonal peaks on the Chicago market last week. Top hogs rose to a high of $9.65 per cwt. in the Thursday trade, while cattle sold at a $12.25 top on both Wednesday and Thursday. The latter price is the highest, to date, this year.

FRANK PRIEBE'S WEEKLY LETTER to POULTRY RAISERS

Good corn weather is always poor egg weather.

Whenever you hear people saying they can always see the corn grow, you can be sure you can almost see eggs shrink, too—unless, of course, they are cooled immediately.

Because the egg shell is hard and doesn't shrivel up in the heat, like the skin of an apple would, we sometimes forget how much damage the heat does inside the shell. Fresh fruits and vegetables, and plants contain a lot of water. When heat takes the water out of them, they wilt. And eggs, which are two-thirds water, wilt in the heat, too.

So don't be fooled by the shell. It's a container—nothing more. It doesn't keep an egg fresh any more than a bottle keeps milk sweet.

If you want to keep milk sweet, you don't let it stand around in the barn for several hours. You don't leave it on the back porch or in the kitchen. You take the warm milk to the spring house, or down cellar, or you put it in the ice box. You cool it quick.

If you want to keep eggs fresh, you can't leave them in the nest for several hours. You can't leave them on the back porch or in the kitchen. You have to take them down cellar—and cool them quick. Even in the cellar they can't cool out very fast if you put them down into the case while they are still warm and then cover them with one of those heavy cardboard flats. That just helps to hold the heat inside.

Cool Eggs Over Night Leave them in the basket over night or spread them out in a shallow box so the air can get to them. Then the next morning, when they

PULLETS NEED SHADE

Growing pullets need plenty of shade. H. H. Alp, poultry extension specialist, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, maintains:

"Growth and health can be promoted and guarded if pullets have some desirable retreat from the extreme heat of a hot summer day," he said. "Under the brooder house is not a desirable retreat from the sun."

"Many successful poultrymen commonly grow corn, Sudan grass, Atlas sorgo and sunflowers to provide shade. They also see that feed and water are kept in locations sheltered from the heat."

PICNIC POSTPONED

The picnic which members of the South Dixon Farm Bureau had planned for Sunday, July 17, has been postponed until the following Sunday, July 24. The affair will be held at the Wilbur Cortright farm on rural route 4, and in the afternoon, the crowd will attend the air show at the Dixon airport.

Ogle County Hogs Bring High Prices

Ogle county hogs sold at the Chicago Stock Yards July 5 for the highest price in the swine trade in the past 15 weeks.

The new seasonal top of $9.45 per cwt., was paid for consignments made by Clifford Snyder, of Oregon, consisting of 238 pound butchers, and by Frank Langhelf of Chana, on a drove of 216 pound averages. The price is five cents in excess over the previous peak exhibited at the close of the market last week.

One of the sharpest June advances in recent years was the outstanding feature of the hog market here last month. The average price for the month was $8.55 per cwt., 35 cents above the May average. Only one year since 1926 is credited with a sharper rise in the general average during June.

Tiskilwa Farmers Claim Year's Tall Corn Honors

Claim for a portion of the corn growing honors of 1938 was advanced recently in behalf of Fowler Bros., and their tenant, E. L. Mear, who operate a farm five miles south of Tiskilwa.

Mr. Mear planted a field of hybrid corn on the Fowler place on May 5; on July 4 the corn was higher than the head of a man of ordinary height. This measurement was taken with the corn leaves drooped over in natural position. Mr. Mear said July 6 he is sure the corn will be in tassel by July 12.

FARMERS PICNIC IS PLANNED FOR ROCHELLE SOON

Committees Are Named For City's Annual Festival

Plans are being formulated for the annual Farmers Picnic to be held next month at Rochelle and sponsored by the city's business and professional men. For a number of years this event has attracted a large number of visitors from many miles.

Committees have already been named for the affair and H. N. Calhoun has been selected as general chairman in charge of the day. He will be supported by the following men:

John P. Manning, chairman of traffic, soliciting and fireworks.

John Maxson, chairman of all sports and sporting events.

William Kassul, chairman of entertainment.

Karl Hackett, pop stand.

W. A. Hornsby, coffee stand.

Ike Gehant, hamburger stand.

Ralph Cleveland, grounds.

Elmer Boltz, finance.

Mr. Boltz and Mr. Calhoun, purchasing.

W. H. Hohenadel, concessions.

To Select Helpers Each of these men will select his workers to aid in promoting the affair. The picnic last year was a huge success and over 10,000 rural friends were entertained during the day and night sessions.

John P. Manning was the leader last year.

The date for the picnic will probably be August 25, which will be the last Thursday in the month, a date reserved for the past fourteen years for that event.

Members of the Rochelle Chamber of Commerce will hold a meeting and picnic sometime early in August to work out further details for the big day. Phil May is in charge of this affair.

LOCAL HORSEMEN BID FOR PRIZES ON RACE TRACKS

Polo and Amboy Mounts Groomed for Summer Programs

Frankie Kay, sleek thoroughbred of royal lineage, will be kicking up his heels on the famous Arlington track soon, if the plans of Max Bassman and Ray D. Hedrick of Polo materialize.

The thoroughbred's family lines trace back to a couple of outstanding horses, not for their own prowess but due to their offspring. Fair Play and Magistrate were half brothers, as the records go. Fair Play sired Man O'War, the Kentucky Derby winner of a few years ago; Magistrate sired Miriam Lewis which mare is the mother of Frankie Kay. His sire is Krishna. That the horse is a thoroughbred and pedigreed, is attested by the Jockey club of New York City.

A great many horse fans have seen Frankie and think well of him. Should he get to Arlington he would attract most of the horse race fans from this section. The plan is to send the racer to the park for training.

AMBOY HORSES

Amboy horses participating in the harness races at Princeton on the Fourth of July made excellent showings and gave promise of good performances on county fair tracks later this season. The race meet is arranged each year in connection with a 4-H club picnic sponsored by the Farm Bureau of Bureau county and is a warm-up event for the season. No prizes are paid, money being divided equally among the entries.

Bunky, seal brown 5-year old gelding owned by Dr. W. T. Holladay of Amboy, won both heats of the free for all pace in 2:13 1/4 and the second in 2:12 3/4. The race was open to all aged pacers.

Garrett's horse, Worthy Belwin won both heats of the free for all trot. The 10-year old boy gelding had little difficulty leading the field. He trotted the first heat in 2:10 3/4 and the second heat in 2:09 3/4. Cayton Elliott was the driver.

Competing in his first race Goldie Guy owned by George Healy of Amboy, looked good in the free for all trot. Garrett drove the 6-year old sorrel mare and brought her in 5th and 3rd in the two heats.

TOURNAMENTS DRAW

At least five state tournaments of the National Semi-Pro Baseball Congress, the Kansas, Texas, Indiana, Oklahoma and Kentucky meets, are expected to attract more than 40,000 fans per playoff.

The Living Soil

... Its Modern Care

By CHARLES H. SALT

Director, The Living Soil Institute. The supreme desire of the average gardener is to get the most beautiful flowers and appetizing vegetables from the limited area he has planted. With the arrival of mid-summer, the supply of the latter usually takes a definite drop and bare spots appear along the garden row as more of these 'treasures' are consumed. There is, however, ample time from July until the end of the season for another crop to be harvested if these areas are reseeded.

Undoubtedly many of your early season favorites may be sown now to be gathered in early fall. Lettuce, beets, carrots, radishes and the like are the more common of these.

Because of environmental differences, seeds are sown differently this late in the season than they were in the early spring. Lack of moisture in the upper soil layers makes it advisable to place the seed at a greater depth. This also explains why the soil must be firmed more solidly (for best germination) in the case of late season seedings.

If your soil is low in humus this may be increased in unplanted areas by starting a cover crop now to be turned into the soil when it is making succulent growth, in the

SO, HERE'S THE FORGOTTEN MAN

Frank J. Hogan of national reputation as a member of the bar of the District of Columbia, addressing the New York State Bar Association, greeted his profession as follows:

"My thought is to direct the attention of lawyers to the fertile fields, wide open for us to work in, which are, to an astonishing extent, being neglected by us."

His concluding paragraph:

"It has long and often been said, in lighter vein, of course, that the glorious uncertainty of the law constituted the greatest contributor to the pecuniary prosperity of the profession. But now it can be said, and seriously, that the sunlit fields to be found in what appears as a forest of administrative tribunals are new and deeper pastures. Let us enter and graze."

Traditionally, we have thought of the lawyer in connection with the court and the judge. Today the great field for the practice of law is before the government's administrative boards.

It was not long ago that few men had relations with the United States government other than through the post-office. Now the few are on the other side of the balance. If a man was sued or had to sue, he engaged a lawyer. Otherwise he might go through life without one. Now we have a New Deal which so has entangled the business man with the federal government and the state government that a lawyer almost becomes an essential part of the payroll. Large corporations have retained counsel by the year, but now the man in a small business has to go to his lawyer to find out his chances for opening up in the morning.

As only one of the "sunlit fields" in mind, Mr. Hogan cited the national labor relations board as "an infant administrative law tribunal—what you might think about its strength."

"On June 30, 1936, there were pending before it 286 cases, affecting 69,000 workers," he said. "In one year that number had increased to 4400 cases involving 1,495,000 workers. These 4400 amounted to 900 in excess of all the cases filed in all the eleven United States circuit courts of appeals combined in the same year."

On each side there must be a lawyer.

Of such are the sunlit fields.

The forgotten man who was to be remembered during the New Deal must have been the lawyer.

BUT, WHO WAS WOODROW WILSON?

"Liberty has never come from government. Liberty has always come from the subjects of it. The history of liberty is a history of resistance. The history of liberty is a history of limitations of government power, not the increase of it."

The quotation is from the writings of Woodrow Wilson, for whom the present president of the United States professes great admiration. Perhaps his idea of the wisdom of Wilson is based upon the fact that Wilson gave him a start as a holder of office in Washington as assistant secretary of the navy.

Of course, it is true that as a college professor Woodrow Wilson wrote books on government, and then found it impossible as president to be consistent with his theories. We think there will be general approval of his assertions about quoted. In fact, it is not theory he was expounding, but history. But there will be less liberty as long as an autocrat can use the United States treasury for funds with which to purchase the liberty of the people from them.

STYLE NOTE

To George Bauer, 28-year-old packing plant worker of Denver, Colo.:

First of all, congratulations on becoming an American citizen. Everybody, George, is tickled to death.

Now, please don't start off on the wrong foot by jumping at conclusions too fast. The news stories about your becoming a member of the family weren't very long, and maybe if they'd told more about the situation there wouldn't have been any need to write this letter, but—just in case they did give the whole picture—don't, George, get the wrong idea.

When the judge wouldn't let you be a citizen at first because you came in your shirt-sleeves, maybe he just wasn't feeling very well. No doubt he meant well, George, but a courtroom is a kind of formal place. You're to be congratulated, George, on not getting too sore about it, on going for your coat and coming back and starting all over again.

Anyway, this is the point! The country really likes shirt-sleeves. There never was any indignity attached to them since the place was discovered. In fact, George, as a costume for a man applying to become a member of the family, a pair of work pants and a shirt with the collar open and the sleeves rolled up is just about perfect. Overalls are ok, too. Don't get the wrong idea. Yours truly, etc.

move to beat Adams in the primaries.

But they got no response. It was not until two weeks ago, when Roosevelt was motoring through Wilmington, Del., at the Swedish monument exercises, that he first took up the Colorado primary.

At that time he suggested to Oscar Chapman, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, who was riding with him, that Chapman might run against Alva Adams. Chapman replied that it was too late. He pointed out that in order to be sure of beating Adams it would be necessary for him to begin building up a political machine last December.

The man who finally came out against Adams, Colorado Supreme Court Chief Justice Ben Hillard, is a great campaigner and has a popular following. But the odds are against him, for two reasons:

1. He lacks an organization, which is almost essential in a primary.

2. Hordes of Republicans are changing their registration so they can vote in the Democratic primary for Alva Adams.

Note—Another reason why Oscar Chapman was hesitant about getting into the race was because his Interior Department boss, Harold Ickes, had endorsed Senator Adams. This was in return for Adams' plan in helping put across the confirmation of E. K. Burlew as Assistant Secretary.

Indiana Blues

Another primary faux pas which is giving the blues to the "rear car" (the President's party) is Indiana. There Senator Fred Van Nuys today (Tuesday) is being welcomed back into the fold of the Democratic organization.

Here it was not so much the early bird, but a case of too much trust in a man of over-weening ambition.

The gentleman with the ambition is Paul McNutt, High Commissioner of the Philippines, whose one thought in life is to plant his carefully creased pants on the swivel chair behind the big mahogany desk in the White House. It was this burning ambition and only this, which caused the sudden reversal in Indiana.

The tall, handsome Hoosier has no more liking for Van Nuys than the White House has. In fact, almost up to the last moment he was seriously debating whether to run against him. During McNutt's visit to Washington last winter he told Roosevelt to leave the matter entirely to him, that "the state organization would take care of Van Nuys."

That is why Roosevelt and Farley had made no move to ensure that someone was put in the field against Van Nuys. They confidently depended on McNutt.

What upset the appellation was the Republicans. McNutt et al. had based their plans on the expectation that the Republicans would nominate either former Senator Jim Watson or one of his henchmen.

Jim is a lovable old character but neither he nor any one of his crowd had a chance to win in November. Their nomination would have meant a certain split of the large Republican vote, thereby giving a big edge to the McNutt standard-bearer.

But the Republicans didn't go for Watson or one of his lieutenants. Instead they named Raymond Willis, a highly respected small-town publisher. For McNutt this completely changed the political picture. It meant that Willis would get the solid Republican ballot, leaving Van Nuys and the McNutt candidate splitting the Democratic vote. And Willis' election would have been a crushing blow to McNutt's prestige. It would have meant no more buzzing for his presidential bid.

So as between helping Roosevelt and safeguarding the McNutt presidential boom, McNutt lined up for McNutt. He welcomed Van Nuys home.

Wheat Surplus

For two days the President has been traveling through one of the greatest wheat areas in the world. Just before he left Washington, he received word that very little of this crop would be exported abroad. Behind this is a significant Cabinet story.

A month ago, when advance estimates indicated a billion-dollar wheat crop, Roosevelt called in Secretary Wallace and asked him to do something about selling wheat abroad.

Wallace went to work, but got nowhere. One thing he ran up against was the fact that big consuming countries have so pledged themselves with restrictions that a wheat exporter feels as if he is trying to sell poison gas.

Another thing was Cordell Hull's trade policy, which opposes export bounties. Hull was particularly opposed to the use of "Section 32 money," which means paying an export subsidy from 30 per cent of customs duties. He held that this was the sort of subsidy he had opposed on the part of other countries. With him, Wallace had trouble.

Wallace told the President in a preliminary report that Italy was one country with a short crop which might take some extra American wheat. But when Mussolini heard of this, he declared that Italy had enough wheat (he did not release any figures) and that she would not buy from the United States in any case.

So finally Wallace came back empty-handed. He reported that not much more wheat would be exported this year than during the season just closed, when we shipped abroad only 90 million bushels—or only one-fifth of the surplus.

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

A fascinating pastime with

Albert Edward Wiggam, S. Se. Author of "THE MARKS OF A CLEAR MIND"

1 IS THE APPETITE

A SAFE GUIDE IN DETERMINING ONE'S BEST DIET FOR HEALTH AND LONG LIFE? YOUR OPINION

DOES A PERSON WITH A "ONE-TRACK MIND" THINK STRAIGHTER THAN OTHERS? YES OR NO

IS IT POSSIBLE FOR A DEMOCRATIC GOVERNMENT TO GUARANTEE EVERY ONE A JOB AT A LIVING WAGE? YES OR NO

"The keenest anguish known to human nature is the pain of a new idea," (Bagehot). We hope this column brings you pain.

Answer to Question No. 1

1. Far from it. Millions of people need far more vitamins—especially vitamin B—but don't know it. Millions need more calcium and phosphorus or more or less acid and don't know it. However, as Doctor Sherman, Columbia university nutrition expert, says, a correct diet could be determined scientifically for everyone. Seems a pity this can't be done but Dr. Sherman suggests the following formula as the safest general bet for "buoyant" instead of "merely passable health." "Spend one-fifth of your food budget for milk and cream; one fifth for fresh fruit and green vegetables; three-fifths for meat, fish, bread, butter, eggs, tea, coffee, condiments and sweets."

Most people are as ignorant of the correct diet as the fat woman whose doctor prescribed a reducing menu and she asked, "Should I take this diet before or after meals?"

Answer to Question No. 2

2. In a hard-headed, straight-thinking book, by Dr. W. J. Reilly, he says a one-track mind gets a hunch and then jumps all the way to the end of the track to a conclusion. It's like the man who was moving and sold his stove to a second-hand man for $20 who sold it to the new tenant without moving it for $35! Dr. Reilly said he failed to get off the one-track idea—"Sell the stove"—and think of the "Best ways to sell it," such as offering it to the new tenant or running an ad in the newspaper or trading it in on a new stove, etc.

Answer to Question No. 3

3. I recently had the honor to speak on the same occasion with Miss Dorothy Thompson and she said, in essence, that a democratic government cannot guarantee everybody a living but that a democratic society can come nearer doing it than any other we know about. A democratic government, she argued, can set rules, minimize restrictions, insure freedom or individual enterprise, and in emergencies (not permanently) plan undertakings that release and aid individual initiative. These are the sole economic functions of government. It is then up to democratic society and industry—not to government—to create and distribute wealth and well-being.

WEEKLY INCOME UP FOR FARMERS RAISING SWINE

Upturn in Cattle Prices Lifts Best Steers to High Point

Chicago, July 12—(AP)—Hog producers' weekly income, a major index of farmers' economic status, is almost $3,000,000 higher because of the $2 per hundredweight advance in swine prices the past nine weeks, market statistics showed today.

A corresponding upturn in cattle prices has lifted best steers to the highest point since November while hogs are the highest since October. The gain in hogs which got under way the middle of May and preceded the recent stock market bulge by almost a month gives swine raisers the most profitable feeding basis in some time, livestock experts said.

This week hog prices soared above $10 per hundredweight while choice steers reached a top of $12.50. Yesterday's $10.10 hog top compared with $8.20 early in May and $12.90 a year ago.

Market Bolstered

Livestock traders said the fact that hog receipts had shown little expansion, despite the higher prices, had bolstered the market. Increased demand from meat consumers, indicated by the rising wholesale market which has put best pork loins at the highest level since fall, larger exports of pork and lard and higher cattle quotations also are factors.

With an abundance of comparatively cheap feed, producers can fatten hogs and afford to hold them in order to consume large supplies of corn and to await the rising market, traders said.

At around 50 cents a bushel for corn on the corn-hog ratio of approximately 20 to 1 compares well, livestock men said, with the accepted favorable 10 to 1 feeding ratio.

Marketings Gain

Because the nation's hog slaughtering rate was declining a year ago marketings only recently have been gaining over the 1937 volume. As a result, production of pork during the first six months is estimated to be eight per cent larger than in the corresponding 1937 period. Hog slaughterings totaling 17,224,000 head, was only five per cent greater but the average weight, because of heavy feeding, has increased sharply. Consumption of pork gained one per cent the first six months while exports were 60 per cent greater and imports declined 26 per cent.

Consumption of all meats in recent months has been the heaviest in several years, statistics show.

ESTIMATE 3,000 AT HOME-COMING

Annual Pilgrimage to Nachusa Orphanage Held Sunday

An estimated 3,000 persons visited Nachusa orphanage Sunday for an all day program, and many were from Stelling-Rock Falls and vicinity. LeRoy Thummel was general chairman for the day. It was the annual visitation of churches of the United Lutheran synod from Illinois, Missouri, Iowa and Wisconsin. There were many visiting pastors accompanying their people.

The day was begun with services in St. Paul's Lutheran church in Nachusa village. After the forenoon service all made their pilgrimage to the orphanage. After picnic dinners the afternoon concert was begun. There was a fine program in connection with touring the orphanage and buildings and grounds. The 129th infantry band from Mt. Morris rendered an excellent concert, the program for which was published in The Telegraph. The address of the day was delivered by Rev. R. H. Gerberding to an audience of about 1,000 people. Children of the orphanage sang hymns and gave literary numbers.

During the afternoon the executive committee of the orphanage foundation held a meeting. The chairman was J. M. Anderson of Chicago.

Rev. T. H. Stahl, superintendent of Nachusa orphanage, was the host official and he, with his assistants, guided the many visitors through the plant and gave information to all asked. It is said the pilgrimage of Sunday was perhaps the largest one in the history of the institution. Nachusa orphanage is a project supported by the Men's Brotherhood of the United Lutheran church. It holds the interest of members of the church generally, and drew visitors from Chicago, St. Louis and many other cities.

Cecil B. De Mille's "King of Kings," claimed to be the world's greatest motion picture, costing $2,500,000 to produce, is now being shown at 8 P. M. daily at the Assembly Park Bible conference, and will be exhibited there to July 16, inclusive.

It is said that this great epoch-making, unrivaled passion play creation contains a thousand scenes of beauty and power that will live forever in the hearts of mankind; has 5,000 people and requires two hours to show. It seems to amaze and charm the world—turning away as high as 500 in one church night performance.

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, said: "The 'King of Kings' is the best motion picture in the world today. No man, woman or child should miss seeing it."

It is further claimed that this greatest event in the history of the world, as it is portrayed by the 'King of Kings'; is so tense, so absorbing, so interesting in its spirit of magnificent self-sacrifice and passionate grandeur, so breath-taking in its tremendous climax, that its power and force is beyond description.

The picture is presented under the auspices of the Christian Expansion Organization, a non-sectarian religious body, as a part of its program "to permeate the world with the spirit of Christ."

There is no admission charge. Everybody is welcome. A silver offering will be taken after seeing the picture.

LOVE ON THE RANGE

BY NELSON C. NYE.

The Story So Far

Trouble is brewing on the Rafter T. Quick-fire "Blurr" Ankrom, under the name of Abe Streeter, takes a job on the ranch to help lovely Lee Trone. He has a run-in with the range boss, Mose Hackett, and meets Ratchford, the sheriff, and Claydell, a neighboring rancher. Colonel Struthers and his daughter Betty arrive for a visit, and Ankrom recognizes Struthers as Kelton Dreen, cousin of the main he killed to avenge his father's death.

Chapter 10

'Ready to Tear Loose'

The sun was sinking low behind the western ridges when Ankrom sent the car down the valley trail, out across the yard and braked it to a halt before the ranch house. Ratchford was told to make himself at home—in the bunkhouse. "Streeter will show you an empty bunk if you're planning to stay all night," Lee said coolly after Ankrom had unloaded his passengers before the veranda.

A crooked smile parted Ratchford's lips as he watched her walk into the house. He sighed when she disappeared, sank back in his seat and scowled, seeing Ankrom's glance upon him. "If a polecat, he said bitterly, 'happened to wander into a meetin' of the Old Ladies' Sewin' Circle he wouldn't be a damn bit less popular than I am here."

"You didn't have to come," Ankrom said, and shoving in the gear, he sent the car across the yard into the stable. Cutting off the motor, he climbed out. He heard the sheriff walking behind him as he left the stable. As he crossed toward the bunkhouse the sheriff strode abreast.

"You don't think so, eh? Well, you're dead wrong. Something's crowdin' up for a bust, you mark my words. This range is gettin' ready to tear loose, mister, and when it does, all hell ain't gonna stop it! Look—you don't see no men laz' round that bunkhouse do you? Course you don't. Do you savvy why there ain't none around here now with grub time just about to strike?"

"I expect Hackett's got them out on the range some place," Ankrom answered. "Nothin' unusual in that, I reckon."

"Well, you reckon wrong. Mose Hackett's been keepin' his men hangin' around this ranch like he was scared they'd catch smallpox if they stirred outside the yard

But they ain't here now. There's something—"

Ankrom cut in: "Any sheep interests located round here?" Ratchford gave him a sharp look. "Boone Heffle, a half-witted ole coot, has a little band of a couple thousand."

"Any rustlers' fraternity workin' this range?" A deep crease cut the sheriff's forehead. His eyes stared intently at his questioner. "Trone claims he's been losin' a little beef. That's what I came out here for—want to see him about it. What's this stuff you're sayin'?"

"Gun Smoke Trouble." "Your guess is as good as mine. I was just sort of wonderin' what sort of trouble you had in mind."

"It'll be gun smoke trouble—you can bet on that."

Ankrom was inclined to agree, but he did not say so. Instead he asked, "An' you can't do nothing to stop it?"

"That offer," said Ratchford pointedly, "is still open."

"An' the answer's still the same I got a job."

A snorting sound issued from the sheriff's squat nose. His eyes traveled up and down Ankrom's figure, resting longest at that spot on the right leg of his blue jeans where, when on the range, his scabbarded pistol customarily hung. "Let me tell you something, pilgrim; there's a fella lined up against this spread that wouldn't even be afraid to cross guns with Burr Ankrom, that Arizona smokeroo what's reputed to be hell on wheels on thirteen claps of thunder."

"What kind of handle does this fella pack?"

The sheriff grinned. "He's a Mex breed. Goes under the name of Bandera."

"Bandera, eh?" Ankrom's eyes were speculative. "Is the front end or that 'Chato'?"

"Chato Bandera is the gent I'm gassin' about," Ratchford admitted. "Know him?"

"Seems to me I've heard of him some place or other."

"Listen," Ratchford said. "Listen. The Rafter T, case you ain't posted on the subject, started as a nester spread. Big outfits like my Dad's hated their guts. They tried to put Trone out of business once or twice, before my time that was, but they didn't get very far. They weren't organized an' Trone had some hard characters workin' for him, fellas that would liefer shoot than eat.

"After a while our outfit, Claydell's Swingin' J an' Corson's Double Circle got together an' doped it out that they'd have to throw in together an' all pounce on Trone simultaneously if they was goin' to clean him out. Well, they tried it. I was a kid then an' didn't have no part in it. But it was some fracas, let me tell you, an' when it was over there was Trone still sittin' as pretty as before. That little scrimmage busted Carson flat."

"All Kinds of Queer Things."

"Bout that time my ol' man got the idee that the only way to get Trone right was to bring in sheep. He brought 'em—but it lost him. Claydell figured it out that Trone was jest a little tougher than we an' turned his coat. He threw in with the Rafter T. One mornin' Ed Ratchford found his sheep piled up in the bottom of a canyon. He come home an' brooded for three-four days an' finally went out an' shot himself."

"Where did this Boone Heffle jasper come into the picture?" Ankrom asked.

"He came in when my ol' man imported them sheep. He brought Heffle in as foreman."

"An' Heffle lasted it out," Ankrom studied Ratchford thoughtfully. "Was Heffle the only one of that crowd that stayed on after the war died out?"

"I guess so. Most of the others that weren't planted pulled up stakes an' hit for other parts. But—" and the sheriff's tone went grim, "there ain't nothing holdin' 'em from coming back now."

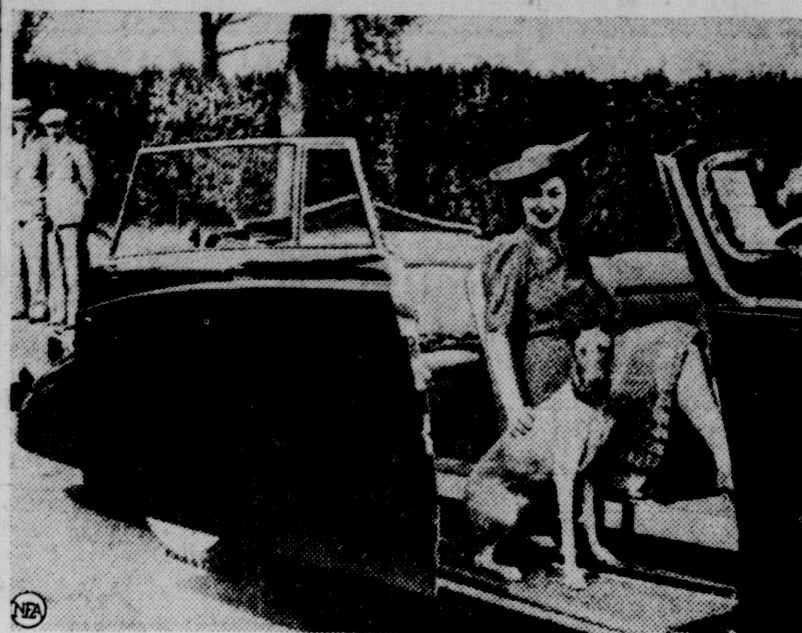

After supper, Ankrom sat outside the bunkhouse smoking. Two of the Rafter T punchers, who had been fence-riding during the day, had come in before the meal and now sat alongside Ankrom, as did the sheriff who, so far, had held no conversation with Trone.

"Wonder where the boys been workin' today," Ankrom slid the words casually into the easy silence that had shrouded the smokers. "Looks like they might be figurin' to spend the night."

"Don't let nothin' surprise you around this dang place," one of the cowboys muttered. "All kinds of queer things been happenin' round here. Hackett's been keepin' us close to the home ranch. He's been sorta on edge, if you're askin' me."

"He's been missin' cattle, too," his partner chipped in significantly. "Leastways, he says he has. Told the Ol' Man we've lost close onto three hundred head in the

The Whole Side of This Car Opens

The ultra of something or other appeared at a combined auto and women's fashion show in Paris when this Packard with body by Scouthik was shown. The girl model demonstrates how you turn a handle and the entire side of the car slides straight out instead of just the door swinging open. The greyhound in the picture is merely decorative—for with this new arrangement you could get a cow in and out of your car, if you liked to ride with cows.

las' eight weeks. I heard him." Ankrom shot a sidelong glance at the sheriff and found Ratchford's eyes upon him meaningfully. It was as though the sheriff were saying, "I told you so." (Copyright, 1938, Nelson C. Nye)
